- 80. Sequence number or other designation to identify records relating to the same alien

Should any information on some fields not be available for the entire period of time our request covers, we ask that all the information be released for whatever period within this time frame an item is available.

Form and format requested. We ask that the information relating to the same alien be provided in a form and format in which all information relating to the same alien can be readily associated. We also ask that the data be released in an electronic format such as in a csv file or files. In the event the agency is not willing to provide the information in the form and format we have requested, we ask that prior to creating the extract that we be consulted for our further input concerning any alternative form or format that is proposed.

Definitions of all codes used in these tables be provided. A number of the requested fields utilize some sort of abbreviation or code to record the information. Our FOIA request includes a request for a current copy of any code files or other records which translate each code into its corresponding meaning.

Supplemental FOIA request for records used in making copies. We further specifically ask under the Freedom of Information Act to be provided with copies of all records indicating the method used -- including but not limited to scripts, commands, batch files, programs and queries -- to produce the copies of the information requested in this letter. We further request any outputs and logs prepared during the process of running these scripts/commands/programs and queries, or prepared to check that the copies are complete and accurate in all particulars.

We request that we be classified as an educational requestor and as a representative of the news media under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act. The Transactional Records Access Clearinghouse (TRAC) is a research data center at Syracuse University where it is a joint center of the Martin J. Whitman School of Management and the S. I. Newhouse School of Public Communications. Under the direction of its co-directors, Professors Long and Burnham, TRAC carries out an active program of scholarly research. Further, as its name implies, TRAC as part of its educational and service mission also serves as a clearinghouse and regularly responds to inquiries from the press, scholars, public interest groups, and other members of the public on where to find government information and the specific types of information available. One of our specialties is computerized federal databases maintained by agencies to record day-by-day activities required for managing the agency and reporting on its performance to various oversight bodies. TRAC actively seeks to promote public understanding of both the operation of the federal government's immigration enforcement programs as well as policies promoting transparency and open government practices. We do this through the gathering and dissemination of information on agency day-to-day activities. At TRAC, we actively gather information of interest to the public, transform this information utilizing our editorial and research expertise into various works -- including computerized knowledge bases and reports -- and make these works available to the public. For example, recent TRAC reports on immigration issues can be viewed at: <http://trac.syr.edu/immigration/reports/> and TRAC's immigration data access tools and applications can be found at: <http://trac.syr.edu/immigration/tools/>.

We also request a full waiver of fees. Disclosure of the requested information is in the public interest. These records concern the apprehension of noncitizens and ICE's filing of charges seeking their removal in proceedings before the Immigration Courts. A public debate is currently ongoing on the effective targeting of ICE's limited resources in carrying out this mission. Access to this basic information is fundamental to the public's ability to become informed about these vital government activities. The requested records will be used as part of our educational and public service activities to help individuals and organizations find the information they need concerning agency policies and practices. It will also be used to inform TRAC's own research on these topics. The results from our research should help address these critical gaps in knowledge and thereby contribute significantly to public understanding of the operations and activities of the government. Research results, as has been the case for our previous studies, will be made publicly available and widely distributed through their publication on our web site (<http://trac.syr.edu/immigration>). We have previously provided detailed information to support earlier classification and fee waiver requests, and we incorporate by reference in this request's justification all of the details contained in the August 1, 2006 letter sent on our behalf by our attorneys at Covington & Burling, LLP. Please let us know if you would like us to furnish an additional copy of this letter for your files.

Finally, we call your attention to the strict time limits set for furnishing requested records under 5 U.S.C. 552. We would very much appreciate your prompt action and response on this request.

Should you have any questions, or if we can be of any assistance, please feel free to contact us. You can reach Long at (315) 443-3563 or by email at suelong@syr.edu. Thank you very much.

Sincerely,
